

The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, May 7. 1707.

London, May 7.

Yesterday arriv'd from Holland the Mail of Friday last.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated May 13.

Perpignan, April 29.

ON Wednesday last the Duke de Noailles, having drawn together all his Troops to the Number of about 9000 Men at Tuyr, march'd towards Ceret: He has a Train of 16 Pieces of Cannon, and a great Quantity of Ammunition; but his Design is not yet known. 'Tis conjectur'd he will march towards Girone, to make a Diversion, that King Charles III who is drawing together several Thousand Men between Barcelona and Martorell on the Llobregat, may not send a Detachment to Aragon.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated May 13.

Mantua, April 26. The Imperialists are getting ready here a great Train of Artillery and Ammunition, for an Expedition that is kept secret, but is believ'd to be design'd against the Kingdom of Naples. This City furnishes 40000 Pistolets for Contributions.

From the Amsterdam Cour. and Gaz. May 12.

Turin, May 27. The 25th at Night a Courier from the Emperour brought Letters to Prince Eugene, who immediately waited on our Duke and took Leave of him, and the next Morning early set out for Milan accompanied by Count Taun. The 25th the Count de Medavi arriv'd here, he was receiv'd at the Gate of Victory with the Honours that are usually observ'd to Generals; he went directly to Court to pay his Compliments to our Duke, but could not at that Juncture be admitted, his Royal Highness having a Fever strong upon him. At the same Time the Count receiv'd Advice, that a Quarrel had happen'd between his Troops and the Peasants of St. Maurice, in which some Men were kill'd on both sides; whereupon he went thither, made all quiet, and caus'd an Officer and several Soldiers that began the Disorder to be siez'd and confin'd: In the Evening he return'd to Turin and had Audience of the Duke of Savoy. Yesterday he went away under a strong Guard to Avigliana to meet his Troops: And to Day his Royal Highness sent Commissioners to inquire into the Cause of the Bickerings that were between the Peasants and the French Troops all the Way from Crescentino to Alpignano and Pianezza. The Marquis de Maurubio Envoy extraordinary from King Charles III to our Duke is arriv'd here, and the Ministers of England and Holland have given Order for making their Equipages, designing to attend the Duke of Savoy into Dauphine. Most of the Horse rais'd by the Enemey in the Milaneze, are come over to us, and have taken on in our Service. The Prince of Vaudemont is pass'd by this City: He sent one of his Gentlemen to compliment our Duke on his Part, but his Royal Highness refus'd him Audience. One of the Enemey's principal Officers has declar'd, that when they were to begin their March out of Lombardy their Troops consisted of 18000 Men; that when they came to Crescentino they were but abt 10000, and that they have since lost 300 Soldiers, several being drown'd in passing the Dorea-Bales, and others kill'd by the Peasants.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated May 13.

Milan, April 30. The 27th P. Eugene arriv'd here Post from Turin. He has demanded of his State 300000 Crowns for Ammunition Bread; and this City continues still to pay 19000 Livres of Money a Day. His Highness having receiv'd an Express from Vienna, has given Order for a Body of 12000 Men to draw together the 8th of next Month at Cazal Maggiore, to march through Romagna to the Kingdom of Naples, under the Command of Count Taun and the Generals Wetzel and V. ubonne. King Charles III has given to the Marquis del Vasto the Principality of Massa Carrara, which belongs to the House of Cibo. All the necessary Dispositions are made in Piemont, for entring Dauphine by 3 several Ways in a little Time. 'Tis advis'd from the Frontiers of Savoy, that there are in the Valley of Aoste 12000 Men of the Troops of the Allies ready to enter Savoy.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated May 12.

Paris, May 6. M. de Basville, Intendant of the lower Languedoc, sollicits the King's Leave to lay down that Office, because the Murmuring of the People about the Mint-bills is so great, that he is afraid they will proceed to open Violence, in which Case his own Life would be in Danger. The Insurrection in Quercy is not wholly suppress'd; 30 of the Principal Men of that Province, having Masks on, had a Conference with the Intendant, and told him plainly the People demanded that all the new Impots laid since 1663 should be taken off.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated May 14.

Paris, May 9. They write from Marli, that last Night Mr. Bulkley, the Duke of Berwick's Brother in Law, arriv'd at Court from Spain, with a particular Account of the Battle fought in the Plain of Almansa, which magnifies the Loss of the Enemey beyond what was given out at first: Te Deum has not yet been sung here for our Success in that Battle. The 7th Instant the Count de Medavi arriv'd here, and Yesterday went to Estang the Seat of M. Chambillard, who will carry him to the King. The Prince of Vaudemont is likewise come hither, and will be at the King's Levee to Morrow Morning. These Generals extoll the Generosity of Prince Eugene, and say all their Troops are arriv'd at Suza, except 2000 sick and wounded Men.

Hague, May 13. Yesterday an Express arriv'd from the Bishop of Paderborn, with Advice, that he had receiv'd an Account from Rome, that Don O-ratio Albani, the Pope's Brother, had been with Count Pedi who is the said Bishop's Agent at Rome, and had acquainted him on the Part of his Holiness, that after many Reflections and Prayers he had resolv'd to call a Congregation to meet the 5th of this Month, when he would declare his Confirmation tion of the Bishop of Paderborn's Election to the Bishoprick of Munster: Don Oratio added, that he might send a Courier with Advice of this to his Highness of Paderborn. The same Evening Don Annibal Albani the Pope's Nephew was with Count Fedi, and deliver'd to him a Note from Don Oratio, in which he confirm'd what he had declar'd to him by Word of Mouth, and said he had nothing to do but to dispatch the Courier. So that in 3 or 4 Days we expect the News of the Execution of the Pope's Promise. The Bishop of Paderborn has sent hither a Copy of the Emperour's Answer to his Letter of Submission, in which Answer his Imperial Majesty tells him, that at the Intercession of several Princes and Potentates, he would forget what had pass'd in the Election to the Bishoprick of Munster, receive him into his Imperial Favour, and leave the Dispute about the Election to be decided according to Right: That one great Motive with him to do this, was the Duke of Lorrain's and the Bishop of Osnabrug's desisting generously from further Contest, and declining to make their Advantage of the Imperial Indignation. Alsoon as this Bishop is install'd at Munster, the Regiments that were lent up to that Frontier, and also that of Nagel which is on the March to Munster, will return to the Army, having already Orders to hold themselves in a Readyness for that Purpose. All the Troops that are to compose the Army, are in Motion to draw together very speedily: The Duke of Marlborough went from hence on Wednesday Morning at 10 a Clock to put himself at their Head. His Grace was accompanied by Mr. Stepney, who is returing to Brussels. The Duke being gone with a firm Resolution to engage the Enemy if possible, we expect to hear of a Battle in a very little Time: The Enemy boast they are desirous on their side to come to an Action. If they themselves may be believ'd they will out number the Allies, and especially in Horse: But we reckon more upon the Conduct of the Duke of Marlborough and on the Goodness of the Troops he commands than on their Number, which however is very great. The Prince of Nassau Friseland is gone to the Army. We are very easy with respect to the King of Sweden, the Duke of Marlborough having told the States he had been assur'd his Swedish Majesty has no Engagement with France. Letters from the Rhine give us little Ground to hope the Germans will make any considerable Efforts on that side. From Vienna they write, that the Emperour cannot yet be dissuaded to lay aside the Design on Naples. The Advices from Paris, say the City of Lions had actually sent Deputies to the Court of France, with a Representation against the making the Mintbills universally current; and that 'twas expected Rouen, Bourdeaux, and other Cities would do the like. Letters from Madrid, of the 26th ult. say a Fleet of 50 Sail had pass'd by Malaga; they are suppos'd to be the Squadron and Transports under the Rear Admirals Dilks and Vander Goes, with the Recruits for Valencia.
